Mary Barnett is a certified nurse-midwife and registered nurse with more than 25 years experience. Her work with women and their families has been in homes, hospitals and birth centers. She has personally delivered over a thousand babies and have participated in the care of thousands more.

Maggie Bennet is a senior Midwife, artist and a Certified Professional Midwife (CPM) and has attended hundreds of births with families in Monterey County, California over the last 25 years. She is the longest practicing homebirth midwife in Monterey County.

Michelle Brown is a licensed Massage Therapist, Michelle began her studies in bodywork, energetic healing and traditional healing practices in 1979. She currently owns and operates WildFlowers: Massage for Women, Families and Seniors, also in Austin.

Rosie Coelho caters to the needs of women throughout the full spectrum of childbearing. From prepartum preparation to postpartum recovery. Rosie studied at the Shiatsu College of England, the Academy of Oriental Medicine in Austin and is currently a student of Master Yun Xiang Tseng (Chen), 25th generation Wudang Taoist priest, and today brings her knowledge to local clients in Central Texas.

Carrie Contey is a coach, consultant, educator and speaker who is deeply committed to supporting, educating and inspiring parents as they create connected, nurturing relationships with their children from conception through childhood. Carrie also works with professionals such as midwives, doulas, early childhood educators and psychotherapists who are interested in integrating the findings of prenatal and perinatal psychology into their work.

Carolyn Deane has consulted extensively as an Executive Coach helping her clients succeed with “stretch” assignments, manage change processes and improve their personal and interpersonal effectiveness for the last 15 years. In this role she developed a series of proprietary models and approaches which provide a fresh and powerful understanding of the challenges we all face in our work life: how to be more “present,” finally let go of unproductive behaviors, resolve conflicts, build trust, improve strategic vision and judgment.

Illysa Foster is a homebirth midwife and owner of Sisters Midwifery in Austin. Her background in psychology and education includes ten years as a college instructor. Illysa is passionate about ethics and has co-authored Professional Ethics for Midwifery Practice, an applied ethics book for midwives and students.

Jon Lasser is an associate professor in the School of Psychology Program at Texas State University. He holds a master’s degree in Human Sexuality Education and a doctorate in Psychology. Prior to teaching at Texas State, Dr. Lasser worked as a school psychologist in the public schools. He is co-author of Professional Ethics for Midwifery Practice.

Jodi Selander has a BS in Psychology and is the founder of Placenta Benefits, info. Jodi launched the Placenta Encapsulation Specialist Training & Certification Course in May 2008 after researching placentophagy and its benefits for postpartum women. Her goal is to have a qualified person in every city offering encapsulation services.

Genevieve Sprinkle is an acupuncturist and herbal medicine provider in Austin. She often works with midwives to help their clients with illness during pregnancy, breech presentation and labor induction. Genevieve treats infertility and menopause as well as providing adjuvant care for cancer patients.

Susan Steffes specializes in the treatment of pregnant and postpartum women and is currently working on dual certification in Pelvic PT and OB/GYN PT through the American Physical Therapy Association’s section on Women’s Health. Susan is dedicated to promoting optimal health through prevention and treatment of pelvic pain/dysfunction through her gentle hands-on approach.

Marcia Walker provides Mindbodyspirit health consultations which includes Therapeutic Massage, Vitaflex, Energy Based Therapies and Life Style Awareness in Austin, TX.

Ginger Webb is a practicing herbalist in Austin and the founder and proprietor of Texas Medicinals, an earth-centered herbal manufacturing company, specializing in medicines made with native and wild-harvested and fresh organic plants.
